The fork heel protector is used to prevent wear around the blade and heel. It adapts perfectly to the heel and prevents the fork from dragging on the ground. Once worn, they can be turned over and reused on the other side.

If the fork touches the ground when lowering it to grab the load, it will wear out much faster and lose its load capacity, being dangerous for the load and for the operator.

Heel protectors fit most forks of the size for which they are made.

They are screwed easily to secure them to the fork elbow.

They lift the fork from the ground about 3 mm preventing it from rubbing with the ground and extending its life.
